The Bachelor of Science in Nursing provides learners with the foundational knowledge of science and the historical art of nursing, while examining and synthesizing current evidence shaping professional practice in a distinctively Christian community dedicated to Christ’s call to service. The Traditional Bachelor of Science in Nursing (TBSN) track is available to those entering into college studies from high school. The first two years are spent studying the university core curriculum requirements, nursing prerequisites, and nursing sciences. The second two years are focused on nursing studies and allow the student to complete the Bachelor of Science in Nursing. The graduate will be eligible to take the licensure exam, NCLEX-RN. The TBSN track is full-time study and available on campus. In addition to preparing the nurse for future graduate nursing education, the TBSN track will prepare the graduate for opportunities for practical clinical experience in diverse healthcare delivery settings, from acute care hospitals to nursing homes to community-based settings, such as home health and hospice programs, school clinics, and occupational settings.
The TBSN degree consists of the following components:

GENERAL EDUCATION (45-46 semester hours) - courses in communications, literature, humanities, fine arts, social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and mathematics that are common in all college degree programs. These are viewed as being the liberal arts component of a degree and are foundational to the upper division courses.

COURSES REQUIRED BY MAJOR (15 semester hours) - courses that include 12 hours of biology science courses as well as developmental psychology.

CORE COURSES (63 semester hours) - nursing courses that build in complexity, knowledge, and skills to prepare the student for competent nursing practice as a Registered Nurse after successful completion of the licensure exam.

ABOUT ANDERSON UNIVERSITY

HISTORY
Anderson University traces its origins back to 1911, when it was chartered as a four-year college for women. Public-minded citizens of Anderson, South Carolina, wanted a college to be established in the growing area since a previous institution, The Johnson Female University had closed during the Civil War. With a donation of land and money from area citizens, the South Carolina Baptist Convention agreed to partner with those who wanted an institution of higher learning in Anderson, and the school opened its doors in 1912.

What we know as Anderson University has throughout its history adapted to the educational needs of South Carolinians and those outside the State seeking a great education in a Christian environment. In 2005, the school officially became Anderson University as it added graduate programs and reorganized into colleges. The University is in the midst of the biggest period of growth in its history, having nearly doubled in enrollment over the past 7 years. Today, 2,908 students enjoy a high-quality education in some 53 fields of study. AU’s scenic campus, located in the historic district of Anderson, South Carolina, benefits from its proximity to the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains and the vibrant city of Greenville, South Carolina. Anderson’s campus has recently grown from its original 68 acres to more than 270 acres, including four new major building projects which have been completed within the past four years.
